MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

As many of you know, this past year has witnessed the launch of the newly structured School of Business at AUC’s state-of-the-art New Cairo campus.

While AUC was settling in its new home, the School of Business was already busy working on a multitude of new initiatives. We selected three main pillars to focus and guide our efforts: entrepreneurship, innovation and leadership. These pillars represent the skills with which we wish to empower our students. The adoption of such a distinctive three-tier thematic approach builds on many years of development, continuous improvement and dedication by different constituents of the school. The three pillars are timely qualities that complement each other and that we believe are necessary for business and socioeconomic development at the individual, organizational and national levels.

It all began in Fall 2009 when the American University in Cairo restructured the existing School of Business, Economics and Communication, which was established in 1993, to create the first dedicated School of Business in the region, building on its success as the regional leader in business education and research. A series of inaugural events were scheduled in February 2010 to mark the opening of the new School of Business and to coincide with AUC’s Board of Trustees annual meeting in Cairo.

One of the highlights of the year is the effort by the school to establish an interdisciplinary Entrepreneurship and Innovation Program (EIP). The program involves working with relevant stakeholders within AUC and the community. The program represents a commitment to our mission “to create an environment that fosters the development of principled and innovative business leaders and entrepreneurs who can make a difference” by developing human-resource capacities to build value and create prosperity in Egypt, the Arab and African regions, and around the world. As we believe that moving forward is a vital need for development, the school will not only focus on its region, but will be looking east and south as well.

With dedicated faculty and staff members, the School of Business provides world-class education for degree-seeking and nondegree students, and is keen to build and maintain strong international partnerships with top education providers worldwide. With the engagement and support of our alumni and friends, the school can pioneer in offering an innovative and dynamic learning environment that stands out as the model for business education in this part of the world while focusing on excellence in teaching, research and service.

The first year for me as dean of the School of Business has been both challenging and inspiring. Although we are aware that different challenges will arise, we are clear about our vision and determined about our mission. I am proud of what we have achieved this year — which builds on years of development, progress and continuous improvement — empowered by AUC visionary leadership, led by a team of distinguished faculty, administered by a group of experienced staff members and supported by dedicated constituencies including alumni, students, advisory board members and friends who believe in the educational mission shouldered by AUC’s School of Business.

I am happy to provide you with a Year in Review in this annual report, which I hope you will enjoy reading.

Finally, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to everyone who has put effort and support for advancing the School of Business, and I look forward to further cooperation in the years to come.

Sherif Kamel
August 2010
Our Vision

The School of Business sees itself becoming globally recognized as the leading business school connecting the region and the world.

Our Mission

The School of Business strives to create an environment that fosters the development of principled and innovative business leaders and entrepreneurs who can make a difference.

School of Business in Brief

Undergraduate Programs

The Department of Economics was established in 1947 as the first economics department in Egypt.

The Department of Management, which was established in 1972, is a regional leader in business education.

The Department of Accounting, which was established in 2009, ensures that students master the basic knowledge and general understanding of accounting principles covering financial, managerial and cost accounting.

Graduate Degree Programs

The Master of Arts in Economics, which was established in 1966, intended for students who wish to acquire graduate-level skills in economic analysis and relevant quantitative techniques.

The Master of Economics in International Development, which was established in 2004, is especially designed for students who wish to acquire in-depth understanding and knowledge in the field of development.

The Economics in International Development Graduate diploma, which was established in 2004, is designed for students who wish to gain a basic understanding and knowledge of development, but who who do not intend to obtain a master’s degree.

Master of Business Administration (MBA), which was established in 1983, is a professional degree designed to prepare students who have completed undergraduate work in any academic discipline and intend to pursue a management career.

Executive Education

In 1977, the Management Center (MC) was established, offering the latest management concepts and techniques. The volume, diversity and transformation of its professional training and development programs have regularly catered for growing and changing needs in the marketplace, both in Egypt and the region.

In 2006, the Citadel Capital Financial Services Center (CCFC) was established. The center is the first of its kind in the Middle East to offer students, researchers and professionals a state-of-the-art instructional facility that integrates hands-on financial services practice with classroom financial concepts.

In 2008, the Women’s Entrepreneurship and Leadership Program (WEL) was established as part of the Goldman Sachs global initiative, providing 10,000 underserved women with a business and management education.

In 2008, the International Executive Education Institute (IEEI) was established to be the leading regional platform for world-class executive education and networking.

Research and Case Centers

El-Khazindar Business Research and Case Center was established in 2007 and is the first case center in Egypt that serves students, faculty, industry professionals and training corporations by providing them with high-quality cases and business research on the Middle East and North Africa region.

The Access to Knowledge for Development Center was established in 2010 as a center for academic scholarship, research and policy analysis on access to knowledge for development in Egypt and the Arab world.
AUC holds institutional accreditation from the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools in the United States (MSCHE /Middle States).

Institutional accreditation status is granted by Middle States for a period of ten years, with a mid-way periodic review. AUC’s most recent reaccreditation was granted by the Commission of MSCHE on June 26, 2008. The accreditation status was reaffirmed subsequent to AUC’s institutional self-study, a visit by a team of peers from Middle States and consideration by the board of MSCHE.

In Egypt, AUC operates within the framework of the 1975 protocol with the Egyptian government, which in turn is based on the 1962 Cultural Relations Agreement between the Egyptian and the U.S. governments.

In the United States, AUC is licensed to grant degrees and is incorporated by the State of Delaware.

Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business

In 2006, the School of Business of the American University in Cairo received accreditation from the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) International. It is the world’s most widely recognized and sought-after endorsement for business programs. It tells prospective students, faculty members and employers that an accredited school produces graduates who are prepared to succeed in the business world — a clear indication of the international quality of a degree from AUC.

AUC’s School of Business is one of only five percent of all business schools in the world that meet the rigorous standards for accreditation by the AACSB (Only 596 member institutions are accredited by AACSB). It is one of 120 business schools outside the United States that are accredited by AACSB.

European Foundation for Management Development

The School of Business is affiliated with the European Foundation for Management Development (EFMD), an international membership organization based in Brussels, Belgium. With more than 700 member organizations from various fields including academia, business, public service and consultancy in 82 countries, EFMD provides a unique forum for information, research, networking and debate on innovation and best practice in management development. EFMD is recognized globally as an accreditation body of quality in management education and has established accreditation services for business schools and business-school programs, corporate universities and technology-enhanced learning programs. The School of Business is working toward acquiring EQUIS accreditation, which is linked to the EFMD mission.
The National Authority for Quality Assurance and Accreditation of Education (NAQAAE) is the accrediting body for all Egyptian educational institutions (higher education, pre-university, and Al-Azhar education). NAQAAE was established in 2007 by a presidential decree with the main aim of supporting Egyptian educational institutes through fostering their quality assurance practices. According to the NAQAAE establishment law, the authority is responsible for evaluating more than 50,000 educational institutions to be accredited within five years. The American University in Cairo is currently in the process of earning NAQAAE accreditation, along with the Department of Management.

Supreme Council of Universities

Since its establishment in 1950, the Supreme Council of Universities (SCU) has been planning the policy of university education and scientific research in Egypt as well as coordinating between national universities in the country. All School of Business graduate and undergraduate programs are accredited by SCU. This accreditation provides equivalence to academic degrees awarded by foreign institutes or universities as well as those not abiding by the universities’ organization law number 49 of 1972. The cycle runs every three years, and the School of Business has renewed its status in the summer of 2010.

Since the beginning of the year, the school has grown from being an education center to one of the strongest entrepreneurial hubs in the region. While seeking the EQUIS accreditation and having the AACSB accreditation, the School of Business at AUC will soon be one of the strongest hubs in the world.

The Year in Review
Within the school
The American University in Cairo held a ceremony in February 2010 to officially launch the newly structured School of Business.

When I was invited to participate in the board of the new business school at AUC, I wasn’t really sure what added value the formation of the school could bring. The department’s reputation was fine and new programs, such as the executive MBA, could still be implemented with some coordination. I have to say that one year into the process, it is being shaped and coming along in steady steps. It is likely to mature in a fast pace to match global changes. AUC will harvest the benefits soon. Dr. Kamel is orchestrating efforts as professionally as expected.

— HE Ahmed Darwish,
Egyptian Minister of State for Administrative Development
The newly revamped School of Business at the American University in Cairo is designed to more effectively showcase our existing programs and provide a platform for launching new ventures in management, accounting, finance, marketing and entrepreneurship. With its strong faculty and under the dynamic leadership of its new dean, Sherif Kamel, AUC is now building on its role in producing and promoting the next generation of innovative and creative private-sector leaders in Egypt and the region. In the fast-changing global business landscape, this is an important and exciting place to be.

– Lisa Anderson
AUC Provost

For many years, AUC has prided itself on training outstanding business leaders and executives for both Egyptian and international corporations. With the establishment of a new freestanding School of Business, we have signaled an increased commitment to this aspect of our mission. Whether in producing highly qualified undergraduates in business and accounting, top-notch MBAs or skilled managers and senior executives, AUC’s School of Business is setting a world-class standard for business education in this vital region of the world.

– David Arnold
AUC President

The American University in Cairo held a ceremony in February 2010 to officially launch the newly structured School of Business.
One of the radical changes in the School of Business that we have all witnessed this year is that sense of creativity, innovation and imagination. As Albert Einstein once said, ‘Imagination is more important than knowledge, for knowledge is limited, whereas imagination embraces the entire world, stimulating progress, giving birth to evolution.’

– Adel Danish, SAB chair; chairman and chief executive officer, Xceed

Dean’s Strategic Advisory Board

The Dean’s Strategic Advisory Board (SAB) was launched in February 2010 and consists of 37 internationally recognized and prominent members of the business community and academia who have committed to provide guidance and advice to help in the development of the School of Business. The board is divided into three committees: Strategic Positioning Committee, Program Committee and Corporate Engagement Committee.

NEW INITIATIVES

Council of the School of Business
The council represents the school’s faculty, students and staff, ensuring their participation in the governance of the School of Business and the discussion of issues pertinent to the school community. It aims to facilitate communication among school constituencies and presents recommendations to the dean regarding academic policies.

The main role of the council is to advise and provide input on any matters deemed relevant to the general welfare of faculty, students and staff.

Department of Accounting
In Fall 2009, the Department of Accounting was officially established; however, a bachelor’s degree in accounting has been offered since 1995.

The objective of the department is to ensure that students master the basic knowledge and general understanding of the accounting principles. Areas of concentration include financial accounting, managerial and cost accounting, auditing and taxation. It takes a multidisciplinary approach to the field, integrating finance and economics with broader perspectives on organizational issues and the business environment.

Office of Student Services
The Office of Student Services was established to provide information on the accounting, business and economics programs and to help in promoting new majors and programs. It is a one-stop shop designed to provide integrated professional service to students at the School of Business.

The Office of Student Services is committed to providing the best resources and advising services to assist students in achieving their study goals, as well as guiding them through their registration process. The office supports the school’s mission of developing innovation, leadership and entrepreneurial skills by offering opportunities for business students to gain real-world experience and explore a variety of career fields through internship opportunities, international competitions and student-related conferences.

Communication and Marketing Unit
A Communication and Marketing Unit was developed within the School of Business to provide information on different activities. A new web site for AUC’s School of Business has been created (www.aucegypt.edu/business), and regular updates are released to highlight main events and top stories. The unit also coordinates the production of the school’s print material including brochures, promotional material, rollups and banners, coordinating with AUC’s Office of Communications and Marketing to ensure its compliance with AUC branding and editorial standards and guidelines.
Access to Knowledge for Development Center

In February 2010, the Access to Knowledge for Development Center (A2K4D) was established within the School of Business to serve as a national and regional center for scholarship on Access to Knowledge (A2K), intellectual property, technology and human development.

A2K4D is a founding member of the Access to Knowledge Global Academy (A2KGA), in collaboration with the Information Society Project of Yale Law School and partners from Brazil, China, Ethiopia, India, South Africa and the United States.

On June 1, 2010, A2K4D hosted a regional meeting on open-source software in the Arab world, with participants from different Arab countries, in order to foster research that will lead to developing a concept paper for each country.

Real Estate Academy

The Real Estate Academy was launched and incubated as part of IIEI, with the aim of facilitating the engagement of real estate professionals in Egypt to join international real estate knowledge networks. The academy also strives to deliver world-class, multilevel training programs in partnership with leading international institutions.

Several events were held since the academy’s establishment including real estate CEO roundtables in November 2009, February 2010 and July 2010; as well as a real estate forum on November 10, 2009, in partnership with the National University of Singapore and Dar El Mimar - Mountain View, with Egypt’s Minister of Investment Mahmoud Mohieldin and international experts present. This was in addition to the Advanced Management Program, The Real Estate Life Cycle, held in Singapore, May 16 – 20, 2010.
Launch of Citadel Capital Financial Services Center Student Academy for Spring 2010

Citadel Capital Financial Services Center (CCFC) has launched the CCFC Student Academy, which offers a wide range of financial training programs and activities to undergraduate and graduate students. The academy’s mission is to “enhance the finance curriculum with interactive training modules, increasing the marketability of AUC students and preparing them to face market challenges.”

The academy’s programs are offered in collaboration with CCFC’s academic sponsors. In Spring 2010, CCFC Student Academy offered students the following programs:

Association for Information Systems Student Chapter – Egypt

The Association for Information Systems (AIS), the premier global organization for information systems (IS) academics manifested in the form of AIS student chapters, is dedicated to providing a forum for current and prospective IS students.

The School of Business is one of 67 global AIS student-chapter founding schools. Its objectives include increasing the visibility of IS programs and access to shared resources, gaining a competitive advantage to succeed within the IS field, leveraging worldwide recognition through competitions and award programs, networking with students from around the world and expanding career opportunities.

Meet the CEO Series

The School of Business launched Meet the CEO series on June 8, 2010, following the School of Business Graduate Honors Assembly. Ayman Abdel Latif ’82 ’86, general manager of Microsoft Egypt, was the first keynote speaker in the series, which aims at enhancing student exposure and providing opportunities to learn from practical work-life experiences.

Certificate in Technical Analysis

CCFC offered students a certificate in technical analysis, in collaboration with the Egyptian Society for Technical Analysis, one of CCFC’s academic sponsors. The main objective of this program was to introduce students to key technical analysis techniques.

More than 35 undergraduate and graduate students participated in the first round of the three-month course. Certified technical analysts conducted the course.

Reuters Certification Program

CCFC offered two rounds of the successful Reuters Certification Program, jointly with Thomson Reuters, the world’s leading source of intelligent information for businesses and professionals. More than 40 aspiring students were given the opportunity to become certified Reuters users. Senior Reuters trainers delivered presentations about the use of Reuters financial databases in the finance and investment industry.
Since its inception, the School of Business has earned a reputation for being an innovative institution that seeks to position itself at the cutting edge. For example, it was the first institution in Egypt to recognize the need to develop a structured program for real estate practitioners and has partnered with the National University of Singapore’s real estate faculty to establish the first Real Estate Academy.

– Ambassador of Singapore to Egypt
Hung Seng Tan
Eduniversal

Eduniversal, a European federation on education, awarded AUC’s School of Business the highest distinction in Egypt in 2009 (up from third place in 2008) and the second highest in Africa, after surveying more than 1,000 business schools globally based on their capacity for international influence, Cape Town, South Africa, October 26 – 28, 2009.

Annual Distinguished Cultural Prize of Sultan Bin Al Owais

Galal Amin, professor of economics, received the Sultan Bin Al Owais Cultural Foundation Award, which recognizes distinguished works and rich contributions to Arab culture. Amin’s award was for the humanitarian and futuristic studies section in recognition of his contributions to economics, politics, community and culture.

Dubai Summer Surprises

The award-winning annual training and industry-exposure program paves the way for 10 young people from the region to participate in the highly successful business administration and marketing internship. The winners received hands-on experience through working on projects, visiting and auditing key DSS events, and working closely with the DSS team, gaining valuable training and real-life exposure to best practices in business administration, marketing and events management.

During the competition, students were judged on the quality of their essays, and one winner was selected from each market to represent his or her country in the program. Safwat was appointed to a marketing team that included students from other universities in the region. Together, they created a marketing plan targeting the enormous population of people under 30 across the MENA region, and highlighting Dubai’s unique and accessible geographic position. Reflecting on her experience, Safwat noted, “We had the opportunity to meet and benefit from some of the greatest minds, all working for the sole purpose of promoting Dubai as a global tourist attraction. Spending two weeks with some of the brightest young Arabs, with so much in common yet so much cultural diversity, broadened my horizons and provided memories that are forever imprinted in my mind.”
CNN’s Multichoice African Journalist of the Year Competition

School of Business alumna Ethar El-Kataney ’07 is the 2009 winner of the economics and business category in CNN’s Multichoice African Journalist of the Year competition for her article “The Business of Islam,” which is currently being turned into a documentary. El-Katatney is the first Egyptian to win in the competition, which started in 1995 and recognizes excellence in African journalism.

Student Case Competition at the American University of Beirut, Lebanon

AUB hosted its first Student Case Competition from May 1 to 3, 2010. The competition gave an opportunity to students from leading universities in the region to interact and apply their academic skills in a practical and professional setting. AUC’s School of Business delegation won first, second and third place. The winners were: Rosette Wahba, business administration major (finance), who ranked first; Farida Kamel, a double major in economics and business administration (finance), came in second; and Salma Shabrawy, accounting major, who won third place.
Student Awards Ceremony Organized by Student Union

On May 2, 2010, AUC’s Student Union granted awards to the best junior and senior science and non-science majors, based on the students’ ability and excellence in combining academic and extracurricular activities. The following winners were School of Business students:

Seniors:
- 3rd: Mohamed El Messary
  Major: Business administration (marketing concentration)

Juniors:
- 1st: Mohamed El Dib
  Major: Business administration (marketing concentration)
- 2nd: Hadeer Shalaby
  Major: Business administration (marketing concentration)
- 3rd: Aya El Badrashini
  Major: Business administration (finance concentration)
  Lobna Youssef
  Major: Business administration (finance concentration)

Arab African International Bank National Competition

The AUC team ranked third in the national competition organized by the Arab African International Bank (AAIB), in addition to receiving a financial award of EGP 15,000 and a summer internship at the bank. Ahmed Imam and Eman Abdel Kader, two business administration seniors, entered the competition and presented an innovative financial product, Pocket Account, which is a service that allows its subscribers to manage all banking transactions through software installed on subscribed mobile phones. Minister of Higher Education Hani Helal attended the closing ceremony on December 22, 2009, together with representatives from the participating universities.
The business school has strong leadership and has been successfully able to create a progressive and dynamic learning environment to mentor the business leaders of tomorrow. AUC has an exceptional track record of graduating talent that is extremely sought after in the work force.

— Aftab Ahmed, Citibank N.A., Egypt

STUDENTS SCHOLARSHIPS

Youssef Jameel MBA Fellowships (established in 2004)

During the first half of the 2009 - 2010 academic year, three cohorts were running (fourth, fifth and sixth cohorts). The fourth cohort ended in Fall 2009, and all fellows graduated in February 2010. The sixth cohort partially commenced in Fall 2009, with 10 fellows enrolled in the MBA program and 15 (as opposed to 10) recruited for Spring 2010. New strategies were applied to search for and approach highly qualified candidates, and these strategies proved to be successful.

The Jameel MBA Fellows Program is to be continued, securing a new cohort (seventh) to be admitted in Fall 2010 with the same criteria and objective of developing future industry leaders in the region to Egyptians as well as Palestinians.

Youssef Jameel ‘68, who officially inaugurated the Abdul Latif Jameel Hall at AUC New Cairo, is a prominent Saudi Arabian business leader, philanthropist, long-time university supporter and devoted alumnus.
STUDENTS SCHOLARSHIPS

Al Alfi Foundation MBA Fellowships (established in 2008)

In February 2010, Al Alfi Foundation agreed to sponsor five qualified engineering and science graduates to attend the MBA program at the American University in Cairo, in addition to the current cohort. The long-term objective of the program is to develop entrepreneurial leaders of the highest caliber who are capable of filling critical positions in industry in Egypt as well as integrating technical and business skills to compete in a global market. The first cohort, which started in Fall 2008, is to graduate in Fall 2010.

Hadya Abdul Latif Jameel MBA Fellowships (established in 2008)

In Spring 2008, Hadya Jameel made a pledge to foster entrepreneurs of the highest caliber who can fill leadership positions in Egypt and the Middle East by providing them with the opportunity to gain technical and business skills to manage and compete in the global market. Fifteen qualified Egyptian engineering and science graduates were granted the fellowship to attend the AUC MBA program, which started in Spring 2008 and ended in Spring 2010.

Ahmed and Ann M. El Mokadem Fellowships (established in 2010)

The main objective of this scholarship is to support Egyptian students with excellent academic records who are interested in pursuing graduate studies at AUC in the fields of economics and international economic development.

NEW PROGRAMS

Bachelor of Business Administration in Management of Information and Communication Technology

The Management of Information and Communication Technology Program (MICT) is a joint venture between the Department of Management at the School of Business and the Department of Computer Science at the School of Sciences and Engineering.

The MICT is designed with a particular focus on adapting its content to a local context congruent with the needs of Egyptian organizations, addressing IT challenges that arise in such organizations. The MICT curriculum provides students with a foundation in the liberal arts and sciences, and enables them to develop expertise in business management and information technology. The essence of the new bachelor's degree is to blend, in a unique way, the managerial and technical aspects of information and communication technology with an overview of related conceptual and practical elements. The program addresses emerging trends, tools and applications in the digital economy.

MBA with a Focus on Construction

The School of Business, in collaboration with the School of Sciences and Engineering, has developed an MBA with an area of specialization in the construction industry.

The program fosters multidisciplinary cooperation to introduce this new concentration in construction for the renowned MBA program. The new concentration has the same requirements of 48 credit hours including a capstone course and 12 newly developed credit hours offered by the construction engineering department. While maintaining the strength of the existing program, allowances have been made to cater to non-engineers and to serve business students better.

School of Global Affairs and Public Policy Executive Education

IEEI has collaborated with AUC’s School of Global Affairs and Public Policy (GAPP) to support the launch of the GAPP Executive Education program. This is to capitalize on synergies between the constituencies of the two schools (GAPP and the School of Business) and to offer joint programs in the future.

Corporate Sustainability Capacity Building Program

The John D. Gerhart Center for Philanthropy and Civic Engagement at AUC has developed a regional Corporate Sustainability Capacity Building Program, successfully inviting stakeholders from the corporate sector as well as the government and development organizations to partner and support the program financially and logistically. The program includes an awareness-building and executive education component, research and case development, as well as peer learning activities.

The Corporate Sustainability Capacity Building Program is in partnership with KCC for the case writing component, and with IEEI for managing and delivering the executive education component of the program.

In 2009 - 2010, two training courses were delivered:

Corporate Sustainability for a Global Economy
Entrepreneurship and Innovation Program

AUC’s School of Business, in collaboration with different stakeholders at the university and partners within the community, is aligning efforts to formulate an AUC-based Entrepreneurship and Innovation Program (EIP), to be incubated under the International Executive Education Institute (IEEI). The program’s main goals are to create a healthy entrepreneurial environment inside AUC that serves the business community in Egypt and the region, and to educate students as to what entrepreneurship is and infuse them with the desire to create and innovate by connecting them to venture capitalists, angel investors and mentors.

A proposed model for a pilot project is to be launched in Fall 2010, which is to include orientation seminars, a business plan competition, a community/campus project, an internship program, industry visits, case writing, organized debates, meet the CEO sessions, a capstone course and company start-up.

To support this initiative, the school has established an entrepreneurship and innovation council, consisting of members with an interest in providing guidance and expertise in this field.

It’s a distinct pleasure to work with the new leadership team at AUC’s School of Business. I had met Dr. Sherif Kamel in San Francisco shortly before he was officially named dean, and I had the opportunity to learn firsthand of his vision for the school. In the ensuing year, I watched with admiration the way he went on to implement his vision, and decided without hesitation to accept the Brown Chair position to help implement the Entrepreneurship and Innovation Program. This world-class program will undoubtedly help position AUC not only as a leading business school in the region, but also as a major and effective incubation and entrepreneurship center for promising startups. I look forward to partaking in its success.

– Ossama Hassanein, board chair, Tech Wadi, Newbury Ventures, member of the dean’s Strategic Advisory Board, the 2010 - 2011 Willard W. Brown International Business Leadership Chair at AUC’s School of Business

Graduate Level
Entrepreneurship and Innovation
This course takes students through the various aspects of starting, managing, and growing a business. Whether to start a new venture, a new project, or develop an innovative way of management. This course will teach how to write a business plan, its benefits and how does it differs from a feasibility study. Opportunity identification, clear business and market definition, segmentation and entry, building a team and creating a suitable organizational form, avoiding common pitfalls, and various strategies for starting or growing a business, are among the numerous facets of entrepreneurship covered in the course. Methods employed include individual and group case analysis, writing a business plan, interviews with, and talks by, entrepreneurs, and profiling of successes and failures.

Strategic Management of Innovation
This course will study the theory and practice of innovation as a process and an outcome based on a comprehensive model of innovation which consists of three determinants: innovation, leadership, managerial levers and business processes. The course will examine the impact of accelerating innovation on cost, product quality and marketability, organizational changes required to couple R&D with marketing and commercialization, and the managerial skills and professional expertise needed to develop a sustainable innovation practice within an organization.

Association Internationale des Étudiants en Sciences Économiques et Commerciales

Faculty Adviser: Ahmed Tolba ’97, ’01, assistant professor of marketing

The Association Internationale des Étudiants en Sciences Économiques et Commerciales (AIESEC) is an international, nonpolitical, nonprofit, student-run, independent, educational foundation. It is a global network of 50,000 members across more than 107 countries and territories in more than 1,700 universities. AIESEC contributes to the community through youth exchange in order to develop individuals who are committed to international cooperation and understanding. It has an international platform enabling young people to discover and develop their potential in order to have a positive impact on society.

AIESEC provides AUC students with opportunities to work abroad as well as take part in exchange programs, community development, environmental awareness, international conferences and training workshops.

In Spring 2010, AIESEC-AUC participated in the NGO Fair (MAD Campaign) in Egypt to represent and provide information about its activities.

A Bite for Life

Faculty Adviser: Monal AbdelBaki ’83, ’88, visiting assistant professor of economics

Under the umbrella of the Department of Economics, a new student club named A Bite for Life has been established under the auspices of the UN World Food Programme (WFP). Through this club, AUC has joined the Universities Fighting World Hunger initiative, which is an international organization of student clubs aiming to achieve food security. The UN WFP trains members of the club to help in school-feeding programs and subsidized food fortification with iron and vitamins.

AIESEC provides AUC students with opportunities to work abroad as well as take part in exchange programs, community development, environmental awareness, international conferences and training workshops.

Entrepreneurs Society

Faculty Adviser: Sherif Kamel ’87, ’90, dean, AUC’s School of Business

The Entrepreneurs Society (ES) is a student-led body founded in 2003. It focuses on enhancing entrepreneurial skills, supporting innovative students and investing in creative ideas introduced by passionate students who are ready to venture into the marketplace. This is established by conducting diverse educational and cultural activities.

ES aims to develop its participants through several means such as organizing general skill-enhancement and awareness programs. This is done by conducting a series of lectures and training sessions that aim to develop students’ entrepreneurial skills and enable members of the AUC community to grasp real-life experiences that prepare them for what they might encounter in the future.

One of the main events organized was the business plan competition, during which students presented and argued in favor of their business proposals. It is an innovative attempt to integrate youth into the complex business world. Participants in the competition take part in a variety of seminars, training sessions and interactive lectures, learning all the technical points of writing a successful business plan. The winners of the competition receive a financial award and the acknowledgement of the Egyptian business community. This year, the prize of the competition was set at LE 50,000. There were 150 applicants, 20 finalists and two winners.

The ES seventh annual convention was held in Spring 2010, with 300 participating individuals, to develop entrepreneurial know-how in interested students. The convention consisted of five workshops in various businesses such as small business simulation as well as import and export simulation. The convention allowed its participants to explore the essence of entrepreneurship through training sessions and interactive discussions.

The Lead is a bi-weekly newspaper published by students. The Lead discusses issues related to AUC student life. In addition, it focuses on different topics such as business, news, entrepreneurship and product reviews. This year, students distributed more than 2,500 copies.

Events also included several awareness campaigns, a soccer league and a student-development program.

The European Training Foundation, the European Union (EU) agency supporting education and training in countries surrounding the EU, awarded the Entrepreneurs Society a gold medal for its efforts in promoting entrepreneurship learning.

Finance and Investment Club
Faculty Adviser: Eskandar Tooma ’98, associate professor of finance

The society helps students acquire knowledge about banking, finance and investment by organizing different activities with the business community. The primary activities included Meet the Faculty lecture series on finance, an open discussion on the global financial crisis and a mini-conference on global trade.

Citadel Capital Financial Services Center hosted several events with the Finance and Investment Club to promote student activities including stock market simulation and the AUC index.

International Conference on Global Economy
Faculty Adviser: Hamed Shamma ’99, ’02, assistant professor of management

Some of the annual student conferences at AUC have a community-service component. This includes the International Conference on Global Economy (ICGE), which focuses its work on serving the visually impaired through establishing micro projects for families and providing financial support.

The 10th ICGE was held from March 2 to 6, 2010 with more than 400 participants. The opening ceremony was by conducted by Ahmed Asaad, assistant officer at HSBC Bank, Egypt.

Conference activities included Saturday training sessions, junior council, a soft opening, a blood donation campaign, a seminar as well as a field trip to the stock market. There are eight councils: business crisis simulation, investment and commercial banking, audio visual advertising, global economic relations, stock market simulation, marketing and public relations, juniors council and image driving advertising.

Volunteers in Action
Faculty Adviser: Dina Rateb ’84, associate professor of management information systems

Volunteers in Action (VIA) organizes educational and recreational events for orphans including providing literacy classes, micro-projects, and distributing clothes and food packages. VIA’s latest project involved helping orphan brides furnish their new homes. VIA focuses on orphans in the area of Meit Okba.

VIA’s main activities include:
- Outreach activities (conducted throughout the year): micro projects that help orphans in Meit Okba and weekly visits to orphanages
- Iftar to Go campaign (August – September 2009): daily delivery of food to the needy in Ramadan
- Keswa campaign (August – September 2009): collecting used clothes and donating them to the needy during Ramadan and before Eid
- Tamween Packs campaign (August – September 2009): packing raw food for distribution in Ramadan
- Children’s Iftar (September 11, 2009): inviting orphanages to a Ramadan Iftar
- Tagheez Arayes campaign (October – November 2009): collecting donations to purchase the needs of orphans who are getting married
- Orphans wedding (November 21, 2009): charitable wedding for orphan brides and grooms
- Children’s Day (January 8, 2010): inviting Meit Okba orphans to a fun day at AUC
- Charity concert (March 12, 2010): featuring Omar Khayrat to raise funds for the club in order to support more orphanages
- Community Service Day (April 18, 2010): to revive the promotion of recycling on campus
To get something done, you need to really want it and put your head and heart into it.

AUC CLUBS
WITH SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADVISERS

Accounting Link Club

Faculty Adviser: Khaled Samaha, assistant professor of accounting

The main aim of the club is to promote the accounting profession and to inform students of opportunities available in their accounting careers.

Some of the main activities held this year included the Accounting Link gathering, financial analysis lecture and the Accounting Link newspaper.

This is in addition to the eighth Accounting Link club simulation held on April 29, 2010, presented by Ernst and Young. The simulation lasted for two days (April 30 - May 1) with the attendance of an estimated 155 participants from AUC, Ain Shams University, Cairo University and Misr International University (MIU). The simulation included an intensive session conducted by professional instructors from Ernst & Young followed by an exam.

The closing ceremony of the simulation included the announcement of the top twenty participants who were awarded a summer internship at Ernst & Young. The final competition was held to determine the top three winners who were to receive the monetary awards. Those were: Lina Sroor, AUC (first place), Heba Badawi, Ain Shams University (second place) and Ahmed Shaaban, Cairo University (third place).

Agreements, Partnerships

and Projects

Bloomberg Businessweek partnership

The School of Business has partnered with Bloomberg Businessweek in their B-School Connection Program. AUC’s School of Business is one of 170 partner schools and the first partner school outside the United States to join the program, whose purpose is to promote professional business thinking and behavior among students by encouraging them to read, explore and understand current business issues and events on a global scale. The program involved 50,000 business students with access to Businessweek resources including case studies and faculty resources. Businessweek magazine (March 22 and 29, 2010) included a cover wrap on AUC’s School of Business.

WAMDA www.wamda.com

Riyada Enterprise Development Limited (RED) is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Abraaj Capital Holdings Limited and is the owner, operator and developer of the Internet-based portal WAMDA, a dynamic, comprehensive and connected entrepreneurial platform supported by Abraaj. WAMDA aims to link entrepreneurs, innovators, facilitators and change makers in the region. Its main objectives include reshaping knowledge access for and in the capacity of small and medium-size enterprises in the region. AUC’s School of Business has been chosen to be one of 50 founding partners.

Erasmus Mundus Partnership

The School of Business joined the Erasmus Mundus Partnership as an associated partner in the Erasmus Mundus QEM Master in Quantitative Economics and Finance (with several Nobel laureates in economics on the advisory board). The following eminent institutions are also associated partners of the Erasmus Mundus partnership: Paris School of Economics, Sciences Po, ESCP Europe, University of Tokyo, Fundacao Getulio Vargas, Seoul National University and University of Queensland. This partnership will give priority to School of Business alumni to enroll in the QEM Master with a scholarship scheme at the University of Paris, Universidad Autonoma de Barcelona, Universita Ca’Foscari Venezia and University of Bielefeld. Students enrolled in the QEM program will take courses at all consortium universities, and their degree will be issued by two consortium universities and Sciences Po Paris. Being an associated partner also allows for participation in network activities as well as the development of new exchanges for Erasmus-type study-abroad experiences for students in the QEM Program.

AUC’s School of Business also joined the Erasmus Mundus Doctoral Program (EDEEM) as an associated partner. EDEEM is a three-year doctoral program in economics that brings together seven leading European institutions coordinated by the University of Paris 1 Pantheon-Sorbonne. All PhD students are jointly supervised by two advisers through an agreement between two universities in the consortium. The student must spend at least two semesters in each of the two degree-granting universities.

The Emerging Market Global Players Project

The Emerging Market Global Players project (EMGP) is a cooperative arrangement on sustainable international investment between AUC’s School of Business and the Yale Columbia Center (Columbia Law School / Earth Institute, Columbia University) for the publication of an annual report on the top multinational enterprises headquartered in Egypt, ranked by their foreign assets (in addition to any other rankings).
Forum Euroméditerranéen des Instituts de Sciences Économiques (FEMISE)

The Department of Economics concluded a collaborative research project with the Forum Euroméditerranéen des Instituts de Sciences Économiques (FEMISE) on job quality and labor market stratification in which it was the lead institution. The department is also a partner institution with FEMISE in an ongoing project on foreign direct investment in the Mediterranean region.

Women’s Entrepreneurship and Leadership Program

The Women’s Entrepreneurship and Leadership (WEL) Program was established in 2008 as part of a global initiative aiming to provide 10,000 underserved women with business and managerial education. As part of this initiative, Goldman Sachs has established partnerships between universities around the world. In this context, the center partnered with the Wharton School of Business, University of Pennsylvania, to co-design and deliver The 10,000 Women Entrepreneurship and Leadership Certificate Program for Egypt and the Arab world. In June 2009, WEL signed a memorandum of understanding with the Social Fund for Development to facilitate access to capital for graduates of the certificate program.

In its second year, WEL worked on translating and Arabizing the curriculum to ensure greater outreach to the Arab region. More than 1,000 applications were received in 2009 - 2010, of which 100 were selected and offered the scholarship. WEL capitalized on its partnership with the Social Fund for Development to reach out to female entrepreneurs all over Egypt. By the end of the 2009 - 2010 academic year, the total number of participants who graduated was 140.

The Experts in Residence Service is a new initiative launched by WEL in June 2010. It aims to provide graduates with one-on-one consultation with experts from different fields in an effort to enhance their business practices and skills. Experts were recruited from a wide range of fields and included academicians, business consultants and entrepreneurs.

Citadel Capital Financial Services Center

Community service activities, Chartered Institute for Securities and Investment Accreditation.

Citadel Capital Financial Services Center (CCFC) has partnered with the Chartered Institute for Securities and Investment (CISI) in London in an effort to offer a new concept of financial education and professional training. As a leading educational and professional training body, CISI aims to promote financial knowledge and pave the way for individuals starting their careers in the financial services industry. Sharing a common goal, the Citadel Capital Financial Services Center has successfully obtained CISI accreditation as an accredited training provider for the past three years. Recently, the center has applied to renew its accreditation in order to continue training professionals on CISI qualifications and diplomas.

CCFC’s partnership with CISI will enhance the delivery of financial education at AUC. It contributes to bridging the gap between classroom learning and real-life practice, and adds to the credentials of AUC finance students. Obtaining CISI certification prepares participants for real-life challenges and enables them to compete in rapidly changing financial markets. Participants have the opportunity to participate in widely recognized training programs, sit for CISI qualifying exams and become accredited professionals by a leading training institute in the field of investment.
International Executive Education Institute

Company-Specific Programs

• General Motors Egypt (June 2010 - February 2011)

Star Program is an integrated program aiming to assist participants in grasping foundation concepts and their practical application.

• Africa Export Import Bank (July 2 - 3, 2010)

Included a program titled Managing People for Improved Business Performance.

• Arab Bank (July 6 – 11, 2010)

Two programs titled Credit Analysis Tools of Bank (July 6 – 7, 2010) and Capital Adequacy and Promotion of Financial Stability Program (July 10 – 11, 2010).

We are working with the International Executive Education Institute at the American University in Cairo on a customized program to provide top end management inputs to our top talent group known internally as GM Egypt Star Program. I specifically liked the structure and execution of the program which is spread over five modules throughout the year. It allows participants to absorb, internalize and practice some of their learnings between sessions and come back with feedback for the rest of the group. The curriculum is very well-rounded and really focused on practical knowledge.
